Shared Housing Options (Very Common!)

Roommates

Having a roommate is one of the cheaper housing alternatives. It is typical in the United States for students who do not know each other to share a house or an apartment. Normally you have your own bedroom and share the rest of the house or apartment. Generally, apartments are not furnished in the United States. But it is easy to obtain furniture.

Private Homes

Students sometimes rent a room in a private home of a Durham resident. Typically, a student will have general use of the entire house. Bath and/or toilet facilities may be private or shared with the family. Be sure to ask what will be included if you are thinking of renting a room in someone's home. Prices range from $450-$700/month.

Tips/Suggestions for living with others: Be as clear as possible about expectations before moving in! Be very specific about what will be shared and what will be private. Discuss the obligation of bills, including utilities. Don't be afraid to ask questions about the personal habits of the people with whom you will be living. Your expectations and your housemate's expectations very likely will not be the same. Be sure to discuss topics of concern such as cooking, cleaning, visitors, policy for having people over, etc. Ask questions such as: Are you a smoker? Do you study late? Get up early? Have a boyfriend/girlfriend? It is okay to ask these types of personal questions.
